Message from the President

I am deeply honored to assume the responsibility of serving as President of the Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI), and I take on this role with great pride, commitment, and a vision to further strengthen Nepal's private sector and national economy. As Nepal's economy stands at a crossroads, I firmly believe that the private sector must take a more prominent role in defining the destiny of the country. CNI, from its inception, has been a frontrunner in ensuring that the voice of the industries is heard and also converted into effective policy deliverables.

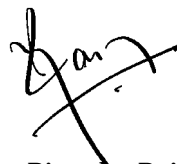

Our path ahead requires new thinking that is evidence-based and collaborative. CNI will also concentrate on evidence-based and fact-based policy advocacy so that our positions are legitimate, data-based, and solution-oriented. We will continue to engage actively with regulators and government agencies not just as stakeholders but as partners in developing an economy that is inclusive, competitive, and strong.

One of my own is to end the persistent skill and education mismatch that holds back the growth of our industries. Cross-fertilization between industry and academia can no longer be a choice; it is now a necessity. CNI will work towards cultivating more synergy between universities, training centers, and research units to align education with industry requirements, provide youngsters with employment-generating skills, and establish an industry-ready workforce with global competitiveness.

Likewise, we must continue to promote innovation, technology uptake, entrepreneurship, and inclusive leadership so that Nepalese businesses are positioned not just to survive but thrive in an evolving world economy. By using more robust networks internally and externally, and through trust-based partnerships between the private sector, government, and development partners, we can free the opportunities for all.

As I take this journey with the capable hand of our members, office bearers, and committed CNI secretariat, my vision is simple: to see CNI as a knowledge-centric organization that brings change through ideas, evidence, and action. Together, we will work towards making Nepal a hub of opportunity, innovation, and sustainable development.

Birendra Raj Pandey
President
Confederation of Nepalese Industries

From the Desk of the Director General

CNI has grown to become one of the strongest voices of Nepal's private sector, uniting entrepreneurs, industries, and institutions from across the nation with a shared vision of promoting private sector-led sustainable economic growth.

As the apex body of the private sector representing medium and large industries and service businesses, our mandate extends beyond lobby work – we seek to foster innovation, productivity, and investment along directions both aligned with national interest and with trends in world economics. CNI has grown into a platform where ideas are translated into policies and coalitions leading toward progress by virtue of its widespread network of provincial chapters, theme committees, and member associations.

In the coming times, our focus will be evidence-based policy advocacy, research-driven thinking, and enhanced outreach with government, development partners, and the global business community. We will keep promoting reforms in industrial infrastructure, the digital economy, energy security, green financing, and climate-resilient growth.

In the same vein, we realize the need to prepare Nepal's industry for the challenges and opportunities that accompany LDC graduation and global value chain participation. Here, CNI is committed to empowering Nepalese companies with the skills, capacity, and networks required to compete on the international front.

With our President, Birendra Raj Pandey, and the vision of our office bearers, council members, and secretariat, I look forward to propelling CNI's vision of making Nepal an investment-ready, resilient, and competitive economy. Together with our members, we will keep building strong networks, creating platforms for policymakers and thought leaders to engage, and opening doors for small, medium, and large industries to thrive.

CNI's journey is a journey of collaboration and collective responsibility. United, with vision and determination, together we shall continue to break barriers, open doors, and drive Nepal towards an age of industrial growth and common prosperity.

Dr. Ghanashyam Ojha
Director General

Introduction

The Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI), established on April 17, 2002, is a professionally led, non-government, and not-for-profit organization representing Nepal's medium and large-scale businesses across the manufacturing and service sectors. Guided by the motto "Talking Business, Talking Change", CNI serves as the apex body of Nepal's industrial and corporate community.

CNI was born out of the need for a modern, forward-looking institution that could effectively represent Nepal's growing industries, provide evidence-based policy recommendations, and work in close partnership with government, private sector, civil society, and development partners. It is driven by the belief that a vibrant industrial sector is the backbone of sustainable economic growth, job creation, and prosperity.

Over the years, CNI has become the voice of Nepal's business and industry- influencing policies, advocating for reforms, and fostering consensus on critical economic issues. It actively engages in shaping an investment-friendly environment, strengthening industrial competitiveness, and promoting both domestic and foreign investment. The Confederation also provides sector-specific legal and policy recommendations to government institutions, helping bridge gaps between policymakers and businesses.

CNI's membership spans across all major sectors- manufacturing, tourism and hospitality, financial services, IT, agriculture, infrastructure, energy, health, and education - bringing together the enterprises that drive over 60% of government revenue. With its presence in all seven provinces, CNI ensures that the concerns of businesses from across Nepal are represented at the national level.

Internationally, CNI maintains strong partnerships with leading business chambers and organizations across Asia, Africa, Europe, and the Americas. Its network extends to countries such as India, China, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Singapore, Hong Kong, Russia, Turkey, Germany, Czech Republic, and beyond, enabling Nepalese industries to connect with global opportunities and best practices.

Looking ahead, CNI remains committed to advancing industrialization, fostering trade competitiveness, and driving Nepal's journey toward double-digit economic growth. By championing private sector-led development, it continues to position itself as a trusted partner for government, businesses, and international stakeholders- working to create a resilient, innovative, and prosperous Nepalese economy.

Vision, Mission, and Strategies

VISION

To drive Nepal's industrial sector towards sustainable growth and global recognition.

MISSION

To foster a vibrant industrial sector in Nepal by encouraging positive competition, enhancing management competence, and creating diverse investment and employment opportunities.

VALUE STATEMENTS

Collaboration: CNI believes in the power of partnerships and collective action. We value our role as a bridge between the government, private sector, civil society, and development partners, working together to drive industrial growth and economic prosperity in Nepal.

Policy Leadership: CNI values its role as a thought leader in Nepal's economic and industrial sector. We are committed to providing strategic and meaningful policy inputs to the government, shaping the future of industrial development, investment, and trade in Nepal.

Service to Members: CNI places its members at the heart of its mission. We are dedicated to supporting our members through challenging times, offering specialized services to enhance efficiency, build competitiveness, and expand opportunities.

Sustainable Development: CNI is committed to promoting sustainable growth in Nepal's industrial sector. We value the balance between economic development and environmental sustainability, advocating for practices that ensure long-term prosperity for all.

STRATEGIES

To accomplish the vision and mission, CNI works under the following broad strategies:

- ▶ Strengthen the efficiency of the Nepali private sector at par with the international level and be recognized as the leader in providing value-added business support services and trade facilitation for competitiveness and quality enhancement.
- ▶ Act as a 'Think Tank' for the management and development of Nepal's industrial sector, and be recognized as the key catalyst in mobilizing the value of the private sector
- ▶ Take appropriate actions to achieve the nation's social aims by ensuring professionalism, social accountability, business integrity, and high standards of quality of goods and services.
- ▶ Play an instrumental role in creating a conducive environment for investment in the country's industrial sectors and provide necessary inputs as well as services for the establishment and development of supportive institutions.
- ▶ Provide crucial recommendations and facilitate different government bodies as well as agencies on issues related to industrial promotion, economic policy formulation, and investment facilitation.
- ▶ Develop a team of professionals at CNI with competencies and commitment to promote the national economy, as well as members' business interests, and formulate necessary rules and regulations within the framework of the CNI constitution to regulate the activities of the confederation
- ▶ Be financially self-reliant by expanding the member base, chapters, industry associations, contact offices, and branches throughout Nepal, and introduce new services to member enterprises and to those who need CNI's assistance to expand their businesses with a high level of professionalism
- ▶ Build an affiliation, cooperation, and mutual rapport with the international public as well as private institutions to promote and develop bilateral, regional, and global trade and investment, and share experiences and views among international organizations.
- ▶ Work in the field of research and development, both at the national and international level, on issues related to industrial development, factor productivity, technological advancement, product innovation, trade facilitation, industrial relations, trade taxation, and many other possible areas of business and investment expansion within and outside the country.

Objectives and Goals

Strengthen Policy Advocacy, Collaboration with Government, and Influence on Economic Policy

To collaborate effectively with the government in creating a proactive and enabling business environment, it's important that policies that directly effect business and industries promote economic growth and competitiveness. All acts and regulations pertaining to business and industry must be critically researched and reviewed to ensure a stable business environment that supports sustainable economic development and industrial growth.

Improve Member Services and Engagement

More members mean more resources and diverse perspectives while increasing CNI's influence. CNI is consistently working to ensure the active participation of its members and creating platforms to network, create opportunities and engage deeply with CNI's vision.

Expand "Make in Nepal" Initiative

To create a stable demand for domestic products, support local industries and contribute to economic growth, it is important to give impetus to the 'Make In Nepal' initiative in collaboration with the government. CNI is working to create broader awareness to promote 'Make In Nepal', lobby with government for securing funds and resources to expand this initiative and advocate for domestic procurement from state bodies. CNI is also conducting a market research study, working to implement a collective trademark, establishing partnerships with international organizations, organize and participate in trade fairs, broadening visibility on digital platforms to market and sell products, and achieve a 15% increase in sales through B2B platforms.

Enhance CNI's Image and Reputation

To increase and build CNI's reputation and public perception at national and international levels, CNI will work effectively to enhance its image as thought leaders.

Increase Media Coverage of CNI's Initiatives

CNI will continue to build its media relations to ensure that its works and achievements are effectively disseminated to the public, affiliate organizations and state mechanisms in a timely manner. CNI will build a comprehensive communication and PR plan that will be executed seamlessly working on multiple platforms including national and international media.

Enhance CNI's Digital Presence

The digital communication strategy will ensure that CNI has a progressive digital presence that is a tool for knowledge sharing and engaging effectively with multi stakeholders and the general public.

Boost Foreign Direct Investment

CNI will continue its efforts in securing investments in the industrial and IT sectors. CNI will engage with potential investors through one-to-one meetings with individual investors, companies and MNCs, organize an investment summit, engaging effectively with Non-Resident Nepalis, and work closely with the Investment Board of Nepal to improve and facilitate FDI. CNI will also lobby with the government to create FDI friendly policies that are effectively implemented.

Promote Job Creation, Skill Development and Human Capital Enhancement

CNI will work with stakeholders and government to create a platform for skill development and enhancement in the manufacturing industries sector. It will work with the government to create at least 2000 new jobs in the next fiscal.

International Networking and Collaboration

CNI will work to expand its global network creating new opportunities for its members. It will participate in international trade missions, create partnerships and collaborations with international chambers of commerce, organize a Union of Asian Chamber event in Nepal, lead foreign delegations, strengthen diplomatic relations, foster academic collaborations and create international connections to build business.

Enhance CNI's Adaptability and Promote ESG

CNI is committed to environment and sustainability and will continue to demonstrate and work on improvement of environmental, social and governance issues. CNI will also continue to work on improving business continuity plans and leadership trainings specifically for women.

Promote Women's Leadership

CNI is committed to increasing women's membership and grow female leadership within the organization and at the provincial level. CNI will organize the Women Leadership Summit in 2025 as an international event and will also collaborate with international women organizations to collaborate and gain insight into global best practices that enhance women's entrepreneurship and leadership.

CNI Flagship Events

CNI will continue to organize its flagship events with specific targets of each program; these are the CNI Infrastructure Summit, CNI Startup Fest, Women Leadership Summit, Make In Nepal, Union of Asian Chambers, CNI Investment Summit, Raisina Dialogue Nepal, Presidential Banquet. In addition, CNI will continue to collaborate and organize events and forums (online and in-person) that are meaningful and in alignment with CNI's vision. CNI is also recognized for its Budget Watch, public private dialogues and policy discourses.

Improve CNI's Organizational Structure, System and Policies

CNI will operate to continually improve its efficiency, communication, collaboration, governance, decision making and overall performance. It will implement a comprehensive performance management system that improves accountability and productivity using systems and operations that are of global standards. CNI will work to enhance its team's capacity through training and professional development initiatives. The team will work with transparency and accountability to ensure the organizations continued growth and success.

Strengthen Provincial Committees

CNI will establish at least two new provincial committees in the current fiscal. It will continue to organize need based training sessions, implement a standardized reporting system to improve communication and track progress, increase the number of initiatives undertaken at the provincial level to contribute to CNI's overall objectives and establish collaborations with local governments for greater impact.

Foster Positive Trade Union Relations

Create a mechanism that provides a structured approach to handle dispute and maintain harmonious relations with trade unions. Create joint initiatives and dialogues to address issues proactively, build trust and foster positive relations. Implement training programs for managers on effective trade union relations, and work towards achieving 20% reduction in trade union related disputes.

Improve Data and Research Services

Implement a data quality management system aiming for higher data accuracy, increase the number of research reports to help in policy advocacy, establish relations with external research institutions and implement a new data sharing platform.

Improve CNI's Financial Stability

Increase CNI's total revenue and broaden financial resources while diversifying revenue sources and implementing prudent operational expenses.

Improve the Efficiency of CNI's Certificate of Origin Services

Reduce the processing time, implement a digital system and achieve zero errors in Certificate of Origin services.

Increase Engagement with Younger Members

Increase the number of younger members at CNI with targeted engagement and programs, foster networking, participation and collaborations, and implement mentorship initiatives.

Foster Unity Among CNI's Members and Stakeholders

Organize networking events to engage, learn and foster a sense of community and collaboration. Increase cross collaboration projects among members. Perform audits on member satisfaction and create a robust communication strategy to keep members informed. Establish a dedicated Member Services Cell to provide personalized support and services to CNI members.

Improve the Effectiveness of CNI's Committees, Forums, Councils, Cells, Desks and Advisory Bodies

CNI will conduct quarterly performance reviews of all committees, forums, councils, cells, desks and advisory bodies to track progress and performance. CNI also aims to increase the number of initiatives led by these bodies and establish new collaborations with external organizations to extend reach and impact.

Increase Collaboration with Development Agencies

CNI will establish new partnerships with development agencies to implement joint initiatives that can leverage the strengths of both CNI and the development agencies, leading to more effective outcomes. CNI will also undertake to publish industrial sector joint research reports or policy papers with development agencies and implement two projects.

Policies

Economic reforms in the country started in the mid-1980s. The reforms were intensified and augmented in the early 1990s after the restoration of democracy in 1990. Since the early nineties, Nepal has implemented extensive legal and policy reforms to facilitate its integration with the global economy. Like many other developing countries, Nepal also pursued an inward-looking and state-led development strategy.

However, the impact of these reforms on trade, economic growth and foreign direct investment (FDI) needs to be strengthened. Political instability, lower literacy rate, under-utilization of available resources, geographical difficulty, etc. are some of the reasons behind Nepal being unable to attract a large number of investors. The Covid 19 pandemic, the post pandemic period and global geopolitical conflicts have hampered domestic as well as foreign investment performance. Post pandemic, the country faces increased economic and financial vulnerabilities due to multiple international and national reasons.

Despite these challenges, CNI believes that Nepal can build the economy through its privileged geographical access to two economic giants as its neighboring countries with huge markets, young population, flourishing local entrepreneurial culture and expanded networking and economic diplomacy at national and international levels. With abundant natural resources, Nepal has the potential to attract investment from domestic and foreign investors. Towards this advanced reform in existing policies as well as incentives and reforms for industries of Nepal must be prioritized.

With this view, CNI aims to work with the government and development partners to improve the investment climate, investment performance and industrial development. In order to achieve the goal of double-digit economic growth, CNI adheres to the following policies while performing its activities:

- ▶ Foreign Direct Investment is one of the important engines for economic development. However, there is tough competition to attract FDI. CNI, in association with the Government of Nepal, will make an effort to change the mindset of foreign investors from 'Why Nepal' to 'Why Not Nepal'
- ▶ Infrastructure is crucial for investment promotion and industrial development of a country. To develop infrastructure at a faster pace, besides peace and security, CNI will help the Government of Nepal to bring favorable investment policies so that private investment and FDI can be attracted into infrastructure projects.
- ▶ Productivity, the most crucial variable for dynamic economic growth and employment creation, is low because the government is not oriented towards productivity enhancement; rather they are focused on cheap labor. CNI will function to enhance industrial relations; increased investment in human resources; paying living wages; introduction of modern technology, and a strategic vision, based on consensus and making stringent labor laws to increase the labor productivity
- ▶ As leaders of the private sector, CNI will focus on increasing productivity through skill development and technology adaptation programs for national economic growth and risk management in the unfolding era of uncertainty, crisis and conflict.
- ▶ The cost of transaction and cost of funds should be reduced with utmost urgency to uplift the competitiveness of the Nepali economy and to ameliorate the investment climate. In this respect, CNI is consistently engaging with the government as well as Nepal Rastra Bank (NRB), the central bank of Nepal, on issues of financial sector reform and capital market development, which in turn will be instrumental in enhancing financial deepening and reducing the cost of capital.
- ▶ There is a lack of clear communication with foreign investors about investment-related issues, rules, regulations and procedures. This is also a road block to foreign investment which has created problems when the foreign investors want to repatriate the profit/dividend. CNI, through the recently developed information portal 'Invest Nepal' along with its regional and global networking, will be actively disseminating primary information to all foreign investors on aspects of FDI.

CNI, in association with the Government of Nepal, will make an effort to change the mindset of foreign investors from 'Why Nepal' to 'Why Not Nepal'

- ▶ Challenges from international competitiveness cannot be met without adequate infrastructure such as roads, warehouses, electricity, water, sanitation and telecommunications. Although the State must provide such infrastructure to level the playing field; CNI will take an initiative and contribute in this aspect through the Public-Private Partnership (PPP) mechanism.
- ▶ It is being recognized that the private sector (both formal and informal) are the true engines of economic growth. But at present, the role of the private sector in the national economy, employment generation, policy-making as well as strategy formulation is not acknowledged despite the advent of liberal democracy. In this respect, CNI will act as lobbyists or pressure groups to narrow down this gap and work to further broaden the contribution of private sector by enhancing professionalism as well as business integrity in line with national interest.
- ▶ The principal objective of CNI is to encourage positive competition and competent management among the industries, promote domestic and foreign investment, and create employment opportunities in the country's industrial and corporate sectors. CNI will be working as a "Think Tank" institution for the management and development of the economic and industrial sectors of Nepal through the means of research and development.

Governance

CNI has a well-defined organizational structure. All CNI activities and functions are carried out under a vertical line of command and through the respective bodies as follows:

General Body

This is the highest body that constitutes all members of CNI. It is also called the General Assembly.

National Council

National Council (NC) is one of the high-level bodies consisting of 54 members (including office bearers) representing different sectors of CNI Membership. Out of these members, 37 are Elected, including Office bearers, 7 Province Coordinators, 10 selected experts, Immediate Past President and rest represents District Industry Associations as ex-officio.

Governing Council

Governing Council (GC) is the policy-making advisory body of CNI consisting senior Industrial leaders under the coordination of CNI President Emeritus.

Office Bearers

Office Bearers Committee is the main functional body of CNI consisting of the President, Immediate Past President, the Senior Vice President, six Vice Presidents and Director General as member Secretary.

Secretariat

CNI has an efficient Secretariat with different departments specialized in research and development, Industry, Revenue, Banking and Finance, foreign trade information center among others. Likewise, secretariat constitutes an information collection and dissemination unit, forums, committees, councils supported by competitive professionals and support staff.

Similarly, the CNI secretariat has its own spacious office of more than 5000 square feet area, which includes three meeting halls, a special guest station, cabins and a number of workstations.

CNI Networks

Since its establishment, CNI has remained deeply committed to expanding its presence across local, national, and international fronts. Guided by this vision, CNI continues to expand its network at national level through provincial and district chapters, and industry associations in regions with strong industrial potential, aiming to create greater value in the national economy through the optimal use of resources. This effort not only stimulates economic activities but also contributes to generating meaningful employment opportunities within the country.

Alongside network expansion, CNI places equal emphasis on strengthening its existing networks (chapters and associations), while actively building new networks both nationally and internationally.

At present, CNI has an active network in the following industrial and business hubs of Nepal:

CNI PROVINCES

In alignment with the federal structure, CNI has expanded its reach across all seven provinces, bringing together nearly 7,000 businesses under its membership. To strengthen its presence and ensure inclusive representation, CNI has established provincial chapters in each province, each led by a designated provincial president.

Province Presidents:

- ▶ Koshi Province, Biratnagar: Pawan Sharda
- ▶ Madhesh Province, Janakpur: Pramod Sah
- ▶ Bagmati Province, Hetauda: Lekhraj Pokhrel
- ▶ Gandaki Province, Pokhara: Dharma Raj Bartaula
- ▶ Lumbini Province, Butwal: Azaj Alam
- ▶ Karnali Province, Surkhet: Chhatra Shahi
- ▶ Sudurpaschim Province, Dhangadi: Raman Chandra Shrestha

CNI INDUSTRY ASSOCIATION

Badri Nath Sharma, President
- ▶ Chitwan Association of Industries, Bharatpur:
Madan Ghimire, President
- ▶ Rupandehi Chamber of Industry, Butwal: Dilip Sapkota, President
- ▶ Pokhara Industrial Area Industry Association, Pokhara: Rudra Shrestha, President
- ▶ Nawalpur Industry Association, Nawalparasi:
KB Rana, President

NATIONAL PARTNERSHIP

CNI recognizes that its goals and objectives, as well as its contribution to the country's economic development, cannot be achieved through its efforts alone. The active participation and collaboration of public and private organizations beyond its own network are equally essential. With this understanding, CNI has been proactively engaging and partnering with a wide range of stakeholders.

To further strengthen its impact on socio-economic development and employment generation, CNI has also established institutional relationships—through MoUs and other forms of collaboration—with the following organizations:

- ▶ Investment Board of Nepal (IBN)
- ▶ Policy Research Institute (PRI), Government of Nepal
- ▶ Alternative Energy Promotion Center (AEPC) Lalitpur

INTERNATIONAL PARTNERSHIP

To foster Nepal's relationship with other nations and to facilitate the economic growth of Nepal through improved investment climate and industrial development, CNI has been focusing on expanding its global presence. To promote professionalism and positive competition, CNI has signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with various public and private organizations at the regional and global levels. CNI envisages that such collaboration will be a milestone for strategic partnership between these organizations and to promote investment potential of Nepal in international markets towards enhanced economic diplomacy.

CNI has entered into bilateral agreements with regional and international associations to help achieve its goal of enhancing professionalism in management, advancement in technology, and development of trade and industry in the country. Some important bilateral agreements with several important global trade and industry organizations are listed below:

- ▶ Confederation of Indian Industries (CII), India

CNI's Global Engagement Drive

The Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI) is actively expanding its global presence with a clear focus on strengthening Nepal's international economic footprint. Our efforts are directed toward the following priorities:

Trade, Investment, and Economic Cooperation:

Facilitate the exchange of information, services, and opportunities to promote trade, investment, and broader economic collaboration between Nepal and partner countries.

Economic Diplomacy:

Work closely with Nepal's diplomatic missions worldwide to expand international markets for Nepali products, deepen economic ties, and foster cooperation with international chambers of commerce.

Diaspora Engagement: Collaborate with the global Nepali diaspora to bring home knowledge, skills, expertise, and investments that contribute to Nepal's development.

Global Networking: Strengthen relationships with international chambers, creating platforms for sharing information and identifying new avenues for trade and investment partnerships.

Policy Recommendations: Advise governments on joint measures that enhance bilateral economic cooperation and promote mutually beneficial trade.

Business Promotion Activities: Encourage Nepali businesses to participate in international trade fairs and exhibitions, sponsor missions, and welcome international business delegations and technical experts.

Capacity Building: Partner in organizing training programs, seminars, workshops, and knowledge-sharing events in areas of mutual interest.

In addition, CNI is actively contributing to key national-level platforms, including the SDG National Committee, the Special Economic Zone (SEZ) Authority, the Trade Facilitation Committee, and the High-Level Committee on Industry and Business Promotion.

HEM RAJ DHAKAL

VICE PRESIDENT

Nepal is heavily reliant on remittances. Until the mid-90s and the early 2000s, the regulatory channel for remittance coming into the nation can be best described as vague. In 2001, Hem Raj Dhakal, along with his brother Chandra Prasad Dhakal, ventured into the remittance business by establishing International Money Express. It was a pioneering venture that changed the shape of the industry

Currently, he holds the position of Managing Director of IME, which is the country's first and leading private sector money transferring enterprise. The establishment of IME was an innovative step for Nepal's remittance and financial system, as it established a formal channel to bring remittance into the country. Consequently, in a short span of time, Hem Raj Dhakal has become synonymous with the financial sector of the nation.

He is also a bona fide serial entrepreneur. Dhakal is the Chairman of IME General Insurance; Chairman of Hathway Investment Nepal, one of the largest investment companies in Nepal, and Founding Chairman of Chandragiri Hills, a Rs 3.2 billion project, among several other business interests. He is also President of the Nepal-Malaysia Chamber of Commerce and Industry and Executive Committee member of the Nepal-India Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

As Co-Founder and Managing Director of IME Group of Companies, one of the fastest growing business conglomerates in the nation, he plays an integral role in the expansion of its domestic and global business network. He is an alumnus of Harvard Business School, USA, holds an Entrepreneurial Master's Program from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, USA, and MBS from Tribhuvan University, Nepal

ROHIT GUPTA

VICE PRESIDENT

Rohit Gupta has pursued an MSc in Finance and Management from the University of Exeter in the UK. He joined the business in 2007 and initiated the group's journey into the technology and mobile phone space. He has created and led these ventures into growth drivers and industry-leading companies over the last decade. He is a Board Member and Director of Shivam Cement Limited, one of the largest integrated cement plants in Nepal. He is also the promoter and shareholder of various BFIs, including Asian Life Insurance, Mahalaxmi Development Bank, Nepal Infrastructure Bank, and Prudential Insurance.

After his stint as Executive Director of Lucky Group, Rohit Gupta incorporated and was appointed Vice Chairman of Ramesh Corp in 2018, at the age of 32, after the untimely demise of his father. As Vice Chairman, he has assumed a strategic role in restructuring and growing the businesses to emerge as an industry leader in the sectors in which the group operates. Rohit Gupta is the architect and owner of Kathmandu Kings XI, which is a leading T20 Everest Premier League (EPL) franchise team. He is also the Chairperson of the Ramesh Gupta Memorial Trust, where, under the guidance of his mother, he leads the Group CSR initiative. Under his stewardship, he aspires to build a meritocratic organization for the group to become a leader in all the major sectors in which it operates.

Rohit Gupta has led and launched CNI's Youth Entrepreneurship Wing, CNIYEF (Confederation of Nepalese Industries Young Entrepreneurship Forum).

It does not matter whether you have been gifted business as a legacy or are a first time entrepreneur, business is hard work and you have to prove yourself along every bit of the entrepreneurial journey with creativity, vision and perseverance. This is what Vishnu K Agarwal, Managing Director of MAW Group of Companies, believes as someone who had to prove himself every inch of the way.

The son of an entrepreneur who founded Nepal's first workshop and took on the dealership of Yamaha motorcycles, his father led the way in two-wheeler trading years ago. Agarwal was exposed to numbers, percentages, talk of profit and loss early in life, and encouraged to join the family business. But it was his passion for motorcycles that fueled the entrepreneur in him.

Agarwal has previously served as Senior Vice President of CNI and as Chairman of its Infrastructure Development Committee. He has previously led the Young Entrepreneurs Forum as well. He is a former football player and is currently promoting Kathmandu Razors Football Club, winners of the Nepal Super League 2021.

Road To $100 Billion Economy

Aspiration for 100-Billion-Dollar Economy: Path to Ambition and Reform

RAMESHORE KHANAL

Minister - Ministry of Finance, Ministry of Federal Affairs and General Administration

To respond to the aspirations of ordinary Nepalis for development and prosperity, we must act on ambitious plans. In this context, the vision of building a 100-billion-dollar economy should be regarded as both necessary and timely. This debate did not begin recently; it has been under discussion for more than a decade. Had we mobilised policy and implementation with determination at that time, our present circumstances would have been entirely different, and by 2030 we would have reached the target. Nevertheless, if we now begin to work with the right strategies and consistent effort, as the CNI has suggested, Nepal can indeed attain the goal of a 100-billion-dollar economy within the coming decade. Dwelling on missed opportunities or lamenting the past will not move us forward. But we must proceed with clear awareness of the obstacles—natural disasters, political and policy instability, poor governance, and weak administration. Failure to address such challenges in time has been a key reason why Nepal has not achieved the expected levels of economic progress, industrial development and general prosperity for the people.

The target we are now discussing is not unattainable. Many countries have demonstrated such rapid advancement within a short period. They succeeded largely because they discovered and effectively utilised their economic potentials. If Nepal is to build a 100-billion-dollar economy within the next ten years, it must achieve an annual growth of 7.19 percent in nominal Gross Domestic Product (GDP). Current growth is already above 7 per cent in nominal terms, which shows the target is not unrealistic—provided that governance and development efforts remain sincere. What must not be forgotten, however, is that annual growth is never uniform. Economies often experience years of high expansion followed by a temporary dip. That is inherent to the character of economies,

Frequent transfers of secretaries and joint secretaries—sometimes within months—and the reluctance of senior officials posted to the provinces to remain there, preferring instead to stay close to the federal capital, has weakened the functioning of government.

shaped by domestic policy, international competition, innovation, and improvements in production processes.

To secure high and sustained economic growth, Nepal must immediately undertake structural reforms, beginning with governance. Present levels of governance and the performance of state facilitation agencies remain far from effective, making it impossible to sustain expected growth. Unless this area sees urgent reform, progress elsewhere will also falter. Fundamentally, three aspects matter most: transparency in political financing, stability in the bureaucracy, and legal reforms.

Lack of transparency in political financing drives corruption throughout society. Political leadership remains vulnerable to invisible forces or the so-called deep state, bending policies to serve vested interests or to repay campaign contributions. Policy instability and bureaucratic uncertainty have created equally adverse conditions. Frequent transfers of secretaries and joint secretaries—sometimes within months—and the reluctance of senior officials posted to the provinces to remain there, preferring instead to stay close to the federal capital, has weakened the functioning of government. Local governments also play a significant role in creating a conducive environment for investment and enterprise. Their cooperation and facilitation can go a long way in attracting investment and enabling businesses to operate smoothly.

Many of the undesirable practices are rooted in opaque political financing, whose eventual burden is borne by citizens. Whether through taxes paid by businesses or bribes extracted for services, the cost is transferred to the people. For this reason, political financing must be made transparent. We had suggested that the government establish clear standards and provide public financial support to political parties. Unfortunately, this was not accepted. Similarly, to build institutional capacity, we recommended limiting the transfer of project chiefs, restricting secretary-level transfers to no more than once in two years, and permitting only a single transfer per tenure. Consider the Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Supplies: although technical expertise is crucial in this ministry, secretaries are replaced within mere months. How then can they understand the needs of industry and entrepreneurs, formulate sound policies, negotiate bilateral agreements with India and China, or advocate effectively for Nepal at the World Trade Organisation and other multilateral forums? Assigning such responsibilities to officials without the requisite expertise is detrimental to both the country and its business community. Yet recommendations for continuity and stability in key posts have not been implemented. From appointments to promotions and transfers, systemic problems persist.

Nepal also suffers from an excess of laws that create obstacles instead of solving problems. Regulations often intimidate and hinder businesses rather than supporting them. A single enterprise may be subjected to inspections and penalties under numerous laws. If tax evasion occurs, the relevant law is sufficient to act upon; yet new laws continue to be introduced unnecessarily. For instance, why to keep the black-market law when the market would be better regulated by competition law? The Companies Act also requires revision. Nepali companies should be allowed to list on foreign stock exchanges—large firms can certainly do so. This would attract investment from abroad while promoting Nepali businesses and products in international markets.

Similarly, citizens should be allowed to open convertible capital accounts, accompanied by effective regulation. In today's interconnected world, no country can produce everything; integration into global value chains is essential. Take Nepali carpets, for example: instead of importing raw wool from New Zealand for processing here, part of the processing could be undertaken there, with customised final production in Nepal. Similar arrangements could be made in Tibet, facilitating cross-border industrial cooperation. Even in semi-processed metals, Nepal could carry out one stage of production and then supply to foreign markets according to demand. Such linkages would make Nepali products more competitive and help shape a new industrial landscape.

The service sector offers even greater opportunities. Nepali hotel chains have already expanded, and can further extend their services and management to countries with similar markets. Nepali chefs enjoy a strong presence in places like the Maldives. Likewise, Nepali construction firms have earned a fine international reputation. Though underappreciated at home, they are already working on World Bank and Asian Development Bank projects elsewhere. Yet legal barriers make it difficult for them to transfer the necessary foreign currency for bidding and performance guarantee in case they win the bid. Even so, they have won competitive tenders in Bhutan, Vietnam, and beyond.

It has been one and a half decades since capital account convertibility was first proposed, but we remain stuck in debate. Had it been opened, Nepali companies producing IT-enabled services, adventure-sports companies, cafés, coffee houses, and construction firms would already have expanded abroad, earning foreign currency and enhancing both the country's and entrepreneurs' global reputation. It was during Dr. Baburam Bhattarai's tenure as Finance Minister that the idea of further liberalising inward foreign investments and also carefully opening outward investment was discussed. He used to argue that just as for a balloon can only be inflated with air from outside, the economy also needs capital from outside to expand. In order to foreign investors to feel comfortable doing business in and from Nepal, we must also open up investing outside. Investment Board was created subsequently with that vision in mind, however, the decision on capital account liberalization remained pending. He was also bold enough to conclude BIPPA with India and there was a proposal to conclude similar agreement with other countries. However, the process got stalled because of political imbroglio and subsequent change of government. A surge of nationalism also hindered decisive action. Yet today, once again, the timing is right: it is an opportune moment to allow investment and skilled Nepali manpower to expand abroad.

The service sector offers even greater opportunities. Nepali hotel chains have already expanded, and can further extend their services and management to countries with similar markets.

Achieving the 100-billion-dollar target will raise the collective morale of the nation and enhance national pride. Yet some within the private sector itself have called for delaying LDC graduation. A section of society remains mired in blind nationalism.

Nepal still lacks the ecosystem necessary for sustained high growth. In energy and mining, for example, access roads, technical expertise, and industrial setups remain inadequate. The Kathmandu–Terai expressway being handed to the army reflects the unfortunate state of affairs. Many continue to believe that large projects are meant to be endlessly exploited, obstructing the smooth establishment and operation of industries. Company registration and similar procedures have yet to be fully digitised. The High-Level Economic Reform Recommendation Commission has already proposed measures to address these issues, including strategies to compensate for inadequate investment.

Even with investments from all three tiers of government, needs remain unmet. Hence private sector investment must be mobilised in the development process. For projects with long payback periods and low returns, viability-gap financing should be introduced, along with tax incentives and other support mechanisms. Constructive collaboration between the government and the private sector is vital, particularly in expanding public–private partnerships. Alternative financing mechanisms—such as blended finance, bonds, and other instruments—must be adopted. Related legislation has only recently been passed by the House of Representatives, signalling that government itself is willing to mobilise alternative finance and support the private sector in doing the same. Let us hope this will be implemented sincerely. Equally important is boosting the morale of entrepreneurs. As Nepal graduates from Least Developed Country (LDC) status to that of a developing country, both national and corporate prestige will rise.

Achieving the 100-billion-dollar target will raise the collective morale of the nation and enhance national pride. Yet some within the private sector itself have called for delaying LDC graduation. A section of society remains mired in blind nationalism. We must rise above such narrow thinking. The aim is not to remain an LDC, but to secure graduation while preserving essential trade preferences. Nepal must engage with Europe, the United States, and other major markets to ensure easier access for goods and services and to lower tariff barriers. Domestically, we must strengthen institutional capacity, adopt technology to deliver services more efficiently, formulate long-term policies to support enterprise and industry, and facilitate projects effectively. Only then will we be able to stem the outflow of youth and attract those abroad to return with opportunities. Reaching our goals of economic growth and development will then no longer be beyond our grasp.

Beyond Boundaries: Envisioning A $100 Billion Nepal

RAJESH KUMAR AGRAWAL
Immediate Past President, CNI

Economic progress and development never happen overnight. They demand vision, strategy, functioning systems, adequate resources, and most importantly, collaboration among all actors of the economy. Over the past four decades, Nepal has witnessed several visions and occasional strategies, but weak institutional systems, limited resources, and the government's reluctance to engage with the private sector have hindered implementation. That does not mean the country has been stagnant. There have been notable achievements and visible progress, but overall growth remains fragile and inconsistent. Unless a clear and ambitious vision is established to drive impactful change in both the short and long term, prosperity will remain an elusive dream.

Around 2008, the Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI) initiated discussions on achieving double-digit economic growth. Yet, despite the passage of more than a decade, that goal remains unrealised. At present, however, Nepal stands at a critical turning point. Economic issues have moved to the forefront of national debate, the government has expressed a willingness to work more closely with the private sector, and businesses have shown determination to expand investment and compete on a global scale. Further strengthening this optimism, Nepal has conducted its first sovereign credit rating and secured a satisfactory grade, signalling the country's potential to connect with international capital and opportunities. Against this backdrop, CNI put forward its ambitious vision of transforming Nepal into a $100 billion economy.

For policymakers, the message was that ambition, not hesitation, should drive reform. For investors, it signalled that Nepal was prepared to think big and integrate with global markets. And for citizens, the aim was to instil a sense of ownership: this journey is not simply about statistics but about creating better jobs, stronger institutions, and a society in which young people can envisage their future at home rather than abroad. Such a vision cannot be seen as belonging to CNI alone. It must be embraced as the nation's collective mission for the coming decade, because everything in an economy is interconnected. Without expanding its size and strengthening its foundations, Nepal cannot hope to achieve the aspirations of any national institution in a meaningful and sustainable way.

When I assumed leadership of CNI, the national economic mood was one of deep pessimism. Nepal was navigating a policy-induced downturn, marked by conflicting fiscal and monetary decisions, and businesses were forced to survive by continually readjusting. While the private sector had grown resilient and learned to withstand difficulties, genuine confidence and optimism were largely absent. For many years, the economy was characterised by modest growth and sluggish development. It was evident to me that unless Nepal aimed higher, its economic culture would remain trapped in a cycle of low expectations and limited ambition. That was the rationale behind setting the vision of a $100 billion economy with double-digit growth. The intention was to break the prevailing ceiling, inspire citizens, and demonstrate that Nepal could think boldly and act with long-term purpose.

It is true that the country once again faced significant economic difficulties, and the current size of the economy is smaller than what many had hoped for. Yet this reality makes the case for higher goals even stronger. If Nepal chooses only to focus on present struggles, it risks losing sight of the future it wishes to build. Ambitious targets provide hope, direction, and purpose, not only for businesses and investors but also for policymakers and ordinary citizens. Nepal has repeatedly shown resilience in the face of adversity, whether through the devastation of the 2015 earthquake, the COVID-19 pandemic, global commodity crises, or the recent domestic slowdown. These challenges have slowed growth but have also underscored the urgent need for strategic reforms, consistent policies, and sustained investment in infrastructure and industries.

Despite political instability and weak capital expenditure, Nepal has made important progress in digital adoption, financial inclusion, and infrastructure development. There are inspiring success stories, such as F1Soft, a fintech company that expanded beyond national borders, and the domestic industries that have achieved self-sufficiency in products like cement and noodles. These examples show what is possible when priorities are identified and pursued with clarity. Yet, mismatches in monetary and financial policies continue to create barriers. These policies often fail to reflect ground realities. One possible way forward is the establishment of a Monetary Policy Committee with broader representation and perspectives. Similarly, institutions such as the Investment Board Nepal must be reformed so that the private sector plays a genuinely advisory role rather than a symbolic one, ensuring that real business needs are addressed rather than policy suggestions being made for formality's sake.

Governments have traditionally been at the centre of economic planning.

Their role, however, should be limited to setting policy, providing infrastructure, and ensuring effective monitoring. The private sector brings agility, ambition, and market awareness that can accelerate progress. Over recent years, CNI has offered wide-ranging recommendations for economic reforms, some of which are being implemented while others still await attention. While there are no shortcuts to double-digit growth, certain fundamental issues require urgent attention at both policy and institutional levels.

To accelerate Nepal's transformation, three areas must be emphasised simultaneously: the development of strategic sectors, the adoption of innovative financing models, and the undertaking of structural reforms. CNI has prioritised eight transformative sectors that can reshape the economy and society. Energy and hydropower can not only meet domestic demand but also enable regional energy trade. Manufacturing, when focused on value-added production, can reduce dependence on imports and stimulate exports. Information technology and digital services can position Nepal as an emerging hub for innovation. Tourism and health can leverage Nepal's natural and cultural strengths. Agriculture, if modernised, has the potential to ensure food security and drive rural transformation. Mines and minerals represent untapped resources that could generate significant revenue. Infrastructure provides the backbone of competitiveness and connectivity, while education must produce human capital aligned with modern industry demands.

These priority sectors are more than just economic drivers. They are catalysts for employment, exports, and sustainable growth. Initiatives such as 'Make in Nepal' exemplify how industry-led transformation can be achieved when vision and commitment converge. Yet, ambitious plans cannot succeed without adequate financing. Nepal must diversify beyond its reliance on customs duties, which make revenues volatile and discourage domestic enterprise. Instead, it should broaden the tax base by targeting domestic production and services, introduce incentives for research, development, and technology adoption, and promote export-oriented industries with higher value addition. At the same time, digitising tax administration will enhance compliance and efficiency, ensuring that the system does not merely fund the state but actively rewards enterprise, innovation, and long-term investment.

Another critical pillar of economic transformation is human capital. Nepal faces an acute challenge of labour migration and brain drain. Retaining talent is not enough; the larger task is to create an environment where skills are nurtured, rewarded, and put to productive use within the country. Educational reform must be at the centre of this effort. The curriculum needs to integrate digital literacy, entrepreneurial education, vocational training, and strong industry-academia collaboration. If Nepal is to achieve the $100 billion dream, it must equip its young population with competitive skills relevant to the modern global economy. Investment in research, development, and innovation ecosystems is equally essential. Citizens are more likely to stay and contribute when they see stability, opportunity, and a system that values merit and creativity.

Infrastructure provides the backbone of competitiveness and connectivity, while education must produce human capital aligned with modern industry demands.

Structural reform is another indispensable area. Project planning and management must be improved so that resources are allocated to the right priorities at the right time.

Structural reform is another indispensable area. Project planning and management must be improved so that resources are allocated to the right priorities at the right time. Accountability must be strengthened with clear, measurable performance indicators for government entities, ensuring that strategies do not remain confined to paper. Finally, digital governance needs to be adopted more widely to enhance transparency, reduce inefficiency, and make public service delivery more citizen-friendly. Without these reforms, sustaining double-digit growth will be nearly impossible.

Since stepping down from leadership, I have been encouraged to see that the agenda for a $100 billion economy continues to receive attention and serious debate. One of CNI's greatest strengths lies in its ability to remain committed to long-term goals, nurturing initiatives until they reach execution. This balance between innovation and continuity is visible in efforts like 'Make in Nepal', which combines long-term vision with adaptability to changing circumstances. While significant progress has been made in digitisation, ICT, and energy, reforms in governance and manufacturing policy have lagged. The current leadership has both the responsibility and the opportunity to accelerate these reforms and keep Nepal firmly on course towards its ambitious economic transformation.

Nepal today stands at a crossroads. The country has endured immense challenges, yet it has also displayed remarkable resilience and innovation. The choice now is between settling for fragile, incremental growth or pursuing bold reforms that can transform the economy and society. The $100 billion vision is not just about numbers on paper. It is about unlocking potential, creating opportunities, and inspiring citizens to believe in the possibility of a prosperous Nepal. Achieving it demands courage, ambition, and collaboration between government, private sector, and society. With consistency and determination, Nepal can move beyond modest progress and take a decisive leap forward towards lasting prosperity.

Bold Reforms for Economic Transformation

BIRENDRA RAJ PANDEY

President, CNI

The Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI) has initiated a campaign to transform Nepal into a 100-billion-dollar economy within the next decade by strengthening and enhancing the contribution of the private sector to national development. We have emphasised that the nation must also acknowledge the difficulties created by policies introduced in response to the earthquake and the COVID-19 pandemic—though well-intentioned, they left businesses and the economy under strain. For more than 15 years, CNI has been stressing the importance of achieving double-digit economic growth, conducting research and implementing programmes towards that goal. Yet we remain clear on one point: only through the concerted effort of government, the private sector, and development partners can Nepal achieve high growth and rapid progress.

Our vision is to deepen collaboration with stakeholders, thereby energising industry and business. If we move forward in this spirit, the benefits will extend not only to entrepreneurs but also to the government, society, and the country as a whole. To illustrate, industries affiliated with CNI contribute nearly 70 per cent of state tax revenue. We are, therefore, a major stakeholder in the economy and its development, and it is in this spirit of responsibility that we have begun this initiative to build a 100-billion-dollar economy.

If the nation is to move forward on the path of development, we cannot remain passive; active engagement is essential. Nepal today stands at a demographic advantage, with 40 per cent of its population young. But this will not last indefinitely. If we fail to harness this potential in time, the opportunity will be lost forever. Meanwhile, our neighbours are advancing rapidly on the path of economic growth and are positioning themselves as global leaders. Their expanding middle classes, rising labour costs, and global trade and geopolitical context create opportunities that Nepal can seize. But unless we act swiftly to capture such opportunities, we risk remaining a country that waits in hope but acts too late, thereby forfeiting the benefits.

Another area of potential lies in natural resources, which Nepal has repeatedly failed to harness. Too often, natural resources are reduced in people's imagination to stone and gravel, yet the country holds possibilities in natural gas, petroleum, iron ore, minerals, and precious stones. Exploration, extraction, and industrial production in these sectors could transform the economy.

At present, Nepal's economy rests heavily on customs revenue and remittances. It is imperative to diversify revenue sources and strengthen economic resilience. This requires a long-term vision and strategy—essential not only to address public aspirations and meet the Sustainable Development Goals but also to confront the challenges that will arise when Nepal graduates to developing-country status, and ultimately to facilitate our journey towards middle-income standing.

In this context, CNI has identified eight priority sectors: Energy, Infrastructure, IT, Tourism, Agriculture, Manufacturing, Mines & Minerals, and Education & Health.

Given the persistent trade deficit, Nepal must prioritise import substitution and export growth by boosting domestic production. Some imported agricultural products could be replaced by domestic output within a year or two. Immediate attention must be given to such areas. In the longer term, we must promote high-value goods for export. Even now, there are many Nepali products in high demand abroad that we are unable to supply adequately. Some industries with great potential remain overlooked;

these must be identified and developed strategically.

The importance of infrastructure is widely acknowledged, and the state has shown some sensitivity to it. The National Planning Commission has prepared plans and strategies to achieve the Sustainable Development Goals but resources remain insufficient. The Commission has projected that 20 billion dollars in annual investment is required to meet SDG targets, whereas current spending falls far short, creating a growing backlog. CNI and IIDS study recommends that the investment required in four sectors of infrastructure – energy, transport, water and sanitation and urban development is US$ 16.55 to 20.55 billion annually based on growth rate of 5% to 10%. Investment in tunnels, airports, roads, and logistics is essential to facilitate trade and stimulate the wider economy. To meet these needs, instruments such as public-private partnerships and viability gap financing can be employed.

Agriculture remains a sector requiring long-promised but largely unrealised reforms: commercialisation, value-chain development, and mechanisation. Another promising area is the digital industry. Three years ago, Nepal exported software worth 500 million dollars; this figure is now estimated to have grown significantly. The ICT sector offers a double advantage: earning foreign exchange and generating employment, while also accelerating the digitalisation and efficiency of other industries.

Rapid and sustainable development demands quality and competitive education. Yet private investment in education faces increasing risks, with policies that first encourage investment but later restrict it, discouraging investors. Any investor requires at least a minimum period of business certainty, which government must respect. Furthermore, the focus must now shift decisively towards technical and vocational education and training. Policies exist but their implementation has been ineffective. With proper promotion, results could be visible within five to seven years.

Tourism, despite vast potential, remains underdeveloped, and has become a national irony. Despite unmatched natural beauty, adventure sports, cultural diversity, and unique products, Nepal has yet to attract tourists in the numbers it deserves. Expanding geographical indications—for instance, creating and promoting products branded under the Himalayas or local names—could add significant value. Tourism, being labour-intensive, will continue to play a major role in job creation. Integrating health and education with tourism could provide the economy with an unexpected and powerful boost.

Energy is another crucial sector. Questions are already being raised about the market for surplus electricity. To address this, efforts must focus on boosting domestic consumption alongside exports. Promoting data mining and establishing energy-intensive industries would ensure stable demand. Energy serves both as a foundation and as a raw material for industrial development, creating large-scale employment during project implementation and supporting local development. Mining, too, requires prioritised exploration and systematic industrialisation.

Yet no matter the sector, without policy support and facilitation, desired results will not materialise. Potential industries must be incentivised with both financial and non-financial measures. It was only due to supportive policies that Nepal's cement industry developed so strongly. About one and a half decades ago, most cement was imported from India, but today the country produces a full range of cement domestically and exports as well. Likewise, energy has grown rapidly thanks to tax holidays, road access, and investment facilitation. The construction industry has also benefited from policy support, such as permission to import heavy equipment at only 1 per cent customs duty, which has had a positive effect on national development.

At the policy level, Nepal urgently needs to transform itself from an import-driven to a production-driven economy. Reforms are needed in the management of environmental and forest issues, enabling both ecological protection and industrial growth. It is counterproductive for a country with one of the world's highest forest covers to be importing timber for basic use. Good governance, accountability, and transparency must also be prioritised, with reforms beginning in public administration. If we succeed in these efforts, Nepal can be set on the path of prosperity and achieve the 100-billion-dollar target within a decade.

In addition, diversification of production, trade partners, and markets is essential. Priority must be given to identifying industries that require encouragement rather than pursuing a scattershot approach. Development must be inclusive, sustainable, and increasingly green. To mobilise additional investment, the government has introduced policies on alternative financing, which will play a supportive role. As far back as 2014, CNI had underscored the need for alternative instruments at its Infrastructure Summit. But as with many initiatives in Nepal, progress has been slow, and only now is this becoming policy. Work must also advance on viability gap financing and bonds since budgetary allocations alone will not deliver the required leap in development. If Nepal can maintain growth of 7–8 per cent in the early years, it can achieve double-digit growth in later years.

CNI has also launched a 'Make in Nepal – Swadesh' campaign to promote domestic products and accelerate industrial growth. We are active in mentoring start-ups and supporting business development. The private sector is working hand-in-hand with government to attract foreign investment, from investment summits to international promotion programmes. If all stakeholders work together with shared purpose, the target can be met. Challenges certainly remain, but with the right mobilisation of resources, building a 100-billion-dollar economy is within Nepal's grasp.

OUR FLAGSHIP EVENTS

Nepal Infrastructure Summit (NIS)

The Nepal Infrastructure Summit (NIS), initiated in 2014, has emerged as one of the country's most influential platforms for shaping the future of infrastructure development. Organized biennially by the Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI) in partnership with the Government of Nepal and the Youth Community for Nepalese Contractors (YCNC), the summit has successfully convened leaders, policymakers, investors, and experts to deliberate on Nepal's pressing infrastructure needs and opportunities. Over five editions, the summit has advanced critical themes: Accelerating Investment in Infrastructure (2014), Private Sector as an Indispensable Partner (2017), Resilient Infrastructure for Sustainable Development (2019), Infrastructure for Growth (2022), and Driving Sustainable Development through Strategic Investment (2024). Each edition has built momentum by addressing financing gaps, policy bottlenecks, sustainability concerns, and the importance of public-private partnerships. The summit has been instrumental in establishing a specialized bank for infrastructure financing, pushing forward the concept of an “infrastructure project bank,” generating investment interest, and influencing regulatory reforms. It has also progressively incorporated themes of climate resilience, green infrastructure, gender inclusivity, and regional integration.

As a flagship event not just of CNI but of the nation, NIS continues to reaffirm Nepal's commitment to leveraging infrastructure as a cornerstone for economic growth, sustainable development, and global competitiveness.

Make in Nepal - Swadeshi Summit

The Make in Nepal - Swadeshi Summit is a flagship annual event of the Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI), forming a core part of its Swadeshi initiative to promote domestic production, reduce import dependency, and build a self-reliant Nepal. Since its launch in 2022, editions have been held in 2022, 2023, and 2024, each drawing together policymakers, industry leaders, entrepreneurs, and economists to assess the SWOT of productive sectors and map pathways for industrial growth. The 2024 summit concluded with a 35-point declaration urging law reforms, preferential procurement of Nepali goods, better raw material supply, and industry-friendly fiscal policy. With targets like 22-26% industrial contribution to GDP, the Summit advances actionable policy recommendations and serves as a strategic forum amplifying the voice of local industries.

Startup Fest

Startup Fest is a flagship startup event organized by CNI's Young Entrepreneurs Forum (CNIYEF) to energize Nepal's entrepreneurial ecosystem. First held in 2022, the inaugural edition saw over 300 project proposals from across the country. Out of 10 finalists, 7 startups secured investment totalling ~ NPR 250 million from various venture and equity funds. The second edition, Startup Fest 2023, took place on 23 December 2023 in Kathmandu, building on the success of the first and remained focused on promoting innovation, investment, and enabling startups to pitch their ideas.

Startup Fest's objectives include serving as a launchpad for early-stage ventures to connect with investors, facilitating learning through panels and workshops, and reinforcing policies and infrastructure supportive of startups. Over its editions, the Fest has raised visibility for many early startups and has mobilized capital, showing strong promise as a key driver of Nepal's startup growth.

Women Leadership Summit

The Women Leadership Summit (WLS) is a flagship international event of the Women Leadership Forum (WLF)– a women leaders-wing under the CNI– launched in 2023, to accelerate women's leadership across sectors. The inaugural WLS in 2023 in Kathmandu focused on Women in Leadership, Women and Economics, and Women as Agents of Social Change, while a national-level agriculture-focused WLS was convened in Chitwan in 2024 to highlight innovation, sustainability and entrepreneurship in agriculture among women. The second international WLS in 2025 addressed themes such as technology & innovation, women in sustainable agriculture, investing in women, and redefining success.

WLS aims to amplify women's voices in decision-making, empower entrepreneurs, foster peer learning, and channel outcomes into actionable declarations to inform public policy. Among its achievements are the formulation of multi-point recommendation dossiers (e.g. 19-point declarations in 2025), recognition of inspiring women leaders, and establishing sustained institutional dialogue on gender equality in leadership.

TechPeak Nepal

Tech Peak Nepal, the flagship event of the CNI, envisions positioning Nepal's IT industry as a new economic "peak," just as the nation is home to the world's tallest mountains. Launched in 2024, this high-end platform brings together global and national experts, innovators, entrepreneurs, and policymakers to explore opportunities, challenges, and trends shaping Nepal's digital future. The inaugural Tech Peak Nepal 2024 highlighted the importance of collaboration between the private sector, government, and international stakeholders, reaffirming CNI's commitment to driving innovation, investment, and sustainable growth while establishing Nepal as a competitive force in the global tech arena.

Budget Watch

Launched in December 2022, CNI Budget Watch is a flagship initiative— a public-private dialogue— aimed at providing constructive inputs to strengthen accountability and transparency in Nepal government's budget implementation by monitoring quarterly implementation status of private-sector and economy-related provisions from the budget. The programme annually identifies key budget commitments—spanning the key sectors of the economy and private sector—and tracks their progress. It convenes government, private sector, media, and experts for dialogue and publishes detailed reports. By highlighting implementation gaps, Budget Watch aims to spur reforms, improve budget execution, and facilitate enabling policies for private-sector growth.

OTHER MAJOR EVENTS

In addition to its flagship initiatives, CNI regularly organizes a range of policy dialogues and awareness programs, including the CNI Talk Series, Parisanghama Paricharcha, CNI Sanchar Samwad, Policy Discourse, and others. These platforms serve as important avenues for fostering informed discussions, engaging stakeholders, and advancing constructive dialogue on issues critical to Nepal's economic and industrial landscape.

CNI Talk Series: The CNI Talk Series is one of CNI's latest initiatives designed to foster knowledge transformation among its members. Through this platform, CNI brings together national and international experts from diverse sectors for open, engaging, and rigorous thematic interactions. The series serves as a dynamic forum to explore global and local developments in business, policy, technology, innovation, and beyond. By facilitating dialogue and idea exchange, the CNI Talk Series helps members stay informed and empowered to make strategic, market-oriented, and forward-looking business decisions.

Policy Discourse: The Policy Discourse is one of CNI's key platforms for constructive dialogue on critical policy issues affecting Nepal's industrial development, businesses, and economic environment. Through this event, CNI brings together diverse stakeholders—ranging from business leaders and CNI members to subject experts and high-level government authorities—for in-depth discussions on specific policy challenges. The discourse aims to identify practical solutions and actionable reforms that can help remove policy bottlenecks, enhance the business climate, and foster a more conducive environment for investment and sustainable economic growth.

Parisanghama Paricharcha: This is a rigorous discussion program where we bring together relevant stakeholders, business leaders, experts, and government officials to discuss contemporary economic and industrial issues, identify the problems faced by entrepreneurs, address their complaints, and seek out solutions.

Sanchar Samwad: This is CNI's signature engagement initiative with the media community, focused on deepening journalists' understanding of Nepal's business and industrial landscape. Through this program, CNI convenes business journalists, industry leaders, and subject-matter experts for insightful, issue-specific interactions. The objective is to enhance the capacity of business journalists, enabling them to report with greater depth, accuracy, and context—ultimately bridging the gap between industry perspectives and public understanding.

Waste Management and Climate Conference: CNI has also been proactively advancing climate action through diverse initiatives, including co-organizing landmark events such as the Waste Management and Climate Conference (WMCC). The first edition of the WMCC—jointly organized by CNI, Khaalisisi, The Coca-Cola Foundation, the National Human Rights Commission, Women for Human Rights (WHR), and CNIYEF—was successfully held on the World Environment Day— 5 June 2024— at The Soaltee Kathmandu. The inaugural edition united nearly 1,000 participants from 600 organizations across 33 districts of Nepal and five countries. This event's objective is to foster dialogue and collaboration among government, private sector, civil society, local communities, and other national and international stakeholders to address Nepal's waste, pollution, and climate change challenges—promoting circular economy practices and sustainable environmental policy.

Make in Nepal - Swadeshi

'Make in Nepal - Swadeshi' is a multi-year campaign initiated by the Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI) based on public-private collaboration to create a national climate that stimulates domestic industrial promotion, enhances the competitiveness of local firms, and stimulates demand for Nepali goods and services. SWADESHI is an utmost important part of the Make in Nepal campaign launched by the Confederation of Nepalese Industries. The campaign aims to boost demand for Nepal-manufactured goods and services within and outside Nepal. The core initiative to achieve the goals of the Swadeshi Abhiyan is making Nepali goods and services more attractive to domestic consumers – in terms of quality, price, packaging, branding, etc.

A joint initiative of:

The core objectives of the movement are:

- To register 1000 industries with the Department of Industries (DOI) annually.
- To increase industrial share in GDP (as per Sustainable Development Goal 9) to 25% by 2030.
- To create 150,000 industrial jobs annually.
- To achieve exports worth from USD 1.25 billion to USD 4.6 billion in 5 years.

CNI Research Cell

The core mandate of CNI Research Cell (CRC) is to establish CNI as the premier private-sector-led think tank in Nepal. This entails producing a suite of research work in direct consultation with Nepali industries.

Objectives of CRC

- To provide research-backed policy recommendations to the government of Nepal.
- To offer suggestions and to coordinate with relevant bodies for necessary changes in existing policies and laws to create a conducive environment for investment and business.
- To collaborate with various stakeholders on topics related to industrial or occupational policies, rules, and regulations, or the improvements required to enhance investment opportunities.
- To publish reports, and studies relevant to the private sector of Nepal and assist in organizing discussions, disseminations, and presentations with relevant stakeholders.

CRC Activities

The CNI Research Cell (CRC) undertakes studies across diverse sectors to analyze policies and ground realities, producing evidence-based documents and publications. These serve as a foundation for constructive collaboration with the government and other stakeholders, intending to foster a stronger and more enabling business and investment climate in the country.

The following are some of the major activities of CRC:

1. Industry Status Report (ISR)

The Industry Status Report (ISR) is CNI's major regular research-based publication, which provides a comprehensive analysis of the current state of Nepali industries. It draws on CNI's in-house industry survey to deliver an in-depth understanding of sectoral trends. The report helps CNI stakeholders stay updated on the key factors shaping businesses and industries.

Capturing the true essence of Nepali industries, the survey examines both internal factors (within firms) and external factors (within the broader ecosystem) that drive growth and expansion. Issued quarterly, the ISR offers valuable insights into the pulse of the industrial landscape. Based on these findings, CNI actively engages with government authorities to advocate for timely and necessary interventions.

2. CNI Nepal Economy Insights (NEI)

The CNI Nepal Economy Insights (NEI) is a monthly publication that tracks and explains the country's macroeconomic situation. By analyzing data on GDP growth, trade balance, remittance, inflation, interest rates, and more, NEI provides businesses with the information they need to make sound and timely decisions.

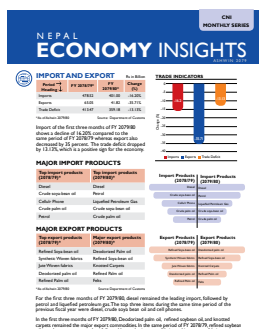

The publication supports businesses in assessing risks, analyzing markets, forecasting trends, and planning for the future. It helps firms adapt strategies, allocate resources wisely, understand consumer behavior, and tap into emerging opportunities while navigating challenges. NEI relies on credible data sources such as the Nepal Rastra Bank, Financial Comptroller General Office, Department of Customs, Department of Immigration, Nepal Electricity Authority, and other regulatory bodies.

3. Other Activities

Beyond the above publications, the CNI Research Cell (CRC) regularly contributes cross-cutting inputs to CNI's committees, councils, and forums, including key initiatives like recommendations for the Government of Nepal's annual budget. When the government seeks feedback from the private sector during policy formulation, CRC rigorously reviews the drafts, conducts detailed analyses, and provides practical, evidence-based suggestions.

Through this process, CRC ensures that the private sector's perspective is well-reflected in national policies, promoting better alignment between government priorities and business needs, and ultimately fostering a more enabling environment for growth.

ग्यास सिलिण्डर प्रयोग गर्दा सावधानी पुर्याउनुपर्ने कुराहरू

ग्यास सिलिण्डर फेर्दा सावधानी पुर्याउनु पर्ने कुराहरू

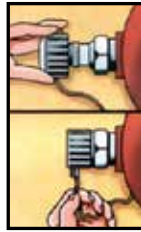

ग्यासको सिलिण्डर जोड्नु भन्दा अघि सबै किसिमको आगोको ज्वाला (जस्तै मेनबत्ती, थुप, दियो, मट्टिलको स्टोभ आदि) नबिर्सिक्न निभाउनुपर्दछ। ग्यासको स्टोभ जोड्दा जोड्दै कुनै स्वीच बाल्ने निभाउने गर्नु हुँदैन।

ग्यास सिलिण्डर खरीद गर्दा जहिले पनि सिल क्याप दुख्ने छैन चेक गर्नुपर्दछ।

ग्यास सिलिण्डर जोड्ने रबर पाईपमा कुनै खराबी (जस्तै चिरा परेको अथवा खाल परेको छैन बराबर चेक गरी रहनु पर्दछ र यदि खराबी नोक्सानी देखिएमा ISI चिन्ह भएको रबर पाईप त्यागि फेर्नु पर्दछ।

ग्यास सिलिण्डरको सिल निकालेर रेगुलेटर जडान गर्नुपर्दछ।

यसरी ग्यास सिलिण्डर ग्यास स्टोभमा जोडीसकेपछि बर्नर बालेर चेक गर्नुपर्दछ।

ग्यास सिलिण्डर प्रयोग गर्दा ध्यान राख्नु पर्ने कुराहरू

रबर पाईपमा कुनै किसिमको खराबीबाट चुहावट छैन बराबर चेक गर्नुपर्दछ र हरेक दुई वर्षमा टयुब फेर्नुपर्दछ।

ग्यास सिलिण्डरमा नाइलनको धागोले बाँधेको प्लाष्टिकको सुरक्षा क्याप (safety cap) भान्छा सुरक्षित साथ राख्नुहोला।

सधैँ सूती (कटन) को एप्रोन (Apron) लगाई खाना पकाउनुपर्दछ।

यदि ग्यास सिलिण्डरको भल्भबाट ग्यास चुहेंको खण्डमा प्लाष्टिकको सुरक्षा क्याप (safety cap) लगाई ग्यासको चुहावट रोक्नुपर्दछ। ग्यास सिलिण्डरलाई तुल्ल खुला ठाउँमा त्यागि राख्नुपर्दछ र ग्यास कम्पनी वा डिलरलाई फोन गर्नुपर्दछ। ग्यास सिलिण्डर प्रयोग नभएको बेला उक्त सुरक्षा क्याप भन्जमा लगाई राख्नुपर्दछ।

यदि सलाईको माध्यमबाट ग्यास स्टोभ बाल्ने हो भने पहिले सलाई कोरेर अलिमात्र बर्नरको नब (Knob) खोल्नुपर्दछ।

सिलिण्डर बन्द ठाउँमा राख्नु हुँदैन।

ग्यास प्रयोग नभएको बेला रेगुलेटरको नब (Knob) बन्द राख्नुपर्दछ।

सिलिण्डर सधैँ सिधा राख्नुपर्दछ।

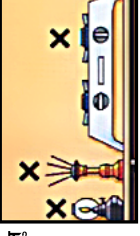

ग्यासको स्टोभ र सिलिण्डर कहिले पनि आफैँ समेत गर्नु हुँदैन ग्यास कम्पनीबाट मेकानिक्स बोलाई मर्मत गराउनु पर्दछ।

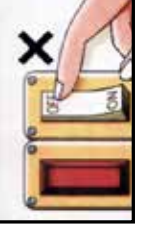

ग्यासको गन्ध आएमा ध्यान राख्नुपर्ने कुराहरू

यदि ग्यासको गन्ध आएमा ग्यासको रेगुलेटर र ग्यास बन्ने रको नबहरू (Knob) तुल्ल बन्द गर्नुपर्दछ।

सबै किसिमको प्रज्वलित चिजहरू (थुप, मेनबत्ती, दियो, सलाई इत्यादि) निभाउनुपर्दछ।

बत्तेको बिजुली बत्ती ननिभाउने र निभेको नबाल्ने (अर्थात् स्वीचहरू अन अफ नार्ने)।

झ्याल ढोकाहरू खोल्नुपर्दछ।

स्मरण रहोस् कि धेरै जसो ग्यासको दुर्घटना चुल्होको बर्नर, पाईप, रेगुलेटर तथा भल्भबाट ग्यास लिक भएको कारण हुने गर्दछ। एउटै कोठामा ग्यासबाट खाना पकाउने तथा सुत्ने कार्य गर्दा ग्यास लिक भएको बखत यसबाट घातक दुर्घटना हुन सक्दछ।

उपभोक्ता तथा डिलरको सुरक्षाको लागि यस उद्योगले ग्यास चुहावटको कारण हुन सक्ने दुर्घटनाको सम्भावनालाई बिचार गरी निश्चित रकमको बीमा गरेको हुन्छ। ग्यास चुहावटको कारणबाट दुर्घटना भएमा बीमा कम्पनीले मूल्याङ्कन गरी उपलब्ध गराउने रकम बाहेक अन्य कुनै सुविधा ग्यास उद्योगबाट प्राप्त नहुने र बीमा बापतको रकम पीडितले बीमा कम्पनीबाट पाउनको लागि ग्यास सिलिण्डरको रब रखाव र ग्यासको प्रयोगमा ध्यान दिनु पर्दछ। साथै एउटै ग्यास उद्योगको ग्यास मात्र प्रयोग गर्ने गर्नुपर्दछ। दुर्घटना हुनसाथ नजिकको प्रहरी कार्यालय, सम्बन्धित डिलर तथा उद्योगलाई तत्कालै जानकारी गराउनुपर्दछ। सिलिण्डर खरीद गर्दा कगजत सुरक्षित राख्नु पर्दछ।

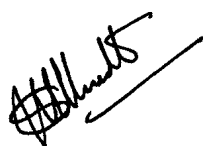

हामीले सधैँ सम्झनु पर्ने कुरा: सिलिण्डर साधारण अवस्थामा पड्किदैन। अन्य कारणबाट आगलागी भई जब सिलिण्डर बलिरहेको आगोको लकामा धेरै समयसम्म रहन्छ र सिलिण्डर तापिएर सिलिण्डर भित्र थुप्रै ग्यास नसक्ने चाप उत्पन्न हुन्छ यस्तो अवस्थामा मात्र सिलिण्डर पड्कने सम्भावना हुन्छ।

Message from the CNIYEF President

As the president of CNIYEF this year, I am committed to work in fostering the next generation of entrepreneurs and industry leaders by promoting innovation, collaboration, and meaningful engagement. Our focus remains on creating platforms where young entrepreneurs can learn, grow, and make a lasting impact on Nepal's economic future.

As the youth wing of the Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI), we have grown into a vibrant community of dynamic young leaders driving change across diverse sectors. Through initiatives such as mentorship, accelerator programs, policy advocacy, and signature events like the Startup and Entrepreneurship Fest, we continue to bridge opportunities between startups, entrepreneurs, investors, and policymakers.

Together, with the guidance of CNI and the energy of our members, we look forward to building a stronger entrepreneurial ecosystem for Nepal.

Manish Shrestha
President, CNIYEF

About CNIYEF

The Confederation of Nepalese Industries Young Entrepreneurs Forum (CNIYEF) is a body of dynamic entrepreneurs, businessmen, and professionals formed under the Confederation of Nepalese Industries (CNI). It is a membership based non-profit organization, established with a vision to bring together entrepreneurs and business leaders in Nepal, who can co-create ideas, learn and grow businesses. With a focus on enhancing the entrepreneurial ecosystem in the country, CNIYEF has taken the lead in working with various ecosystem partners in enhancing the entrepreneurial environment in the country.
